

HARDING DEPRESSES SUFFRAGE, BELIEVES HARMFUL

ed during the past several days and precipitates the issue again into the realm of speculation out of which it so recently emerged.

If the house committee makes a report Monday night, the house may proceed with consideration Tuesday. If the committee withholds its report the resolution remains in the possession of the committee for seven days. It cannot be taken away from the committee until the expiration of seven days. A majority of two-thirds vote, requiring a two-thirds vote. The two-thirds vote is not available. A majority vote is questionable.

At any time during the past three days a vote in the house would have meant ratification Tuesday. It was from the decisive vote by the referendum resolution of "Bully" Bond, the able and astute representative from Haywood, was tabled on Wednesday. The suffragists have been confident they have been secure in their position. They have played for an early ratification vote, but Speaker Walter is opposed to the amendment and besides being an ardent parliamentarian, he has a personal following. In the house there will not take away from him any of the prerogatives that belong to the speaker; thus he has been able to postpone consideration and hence the delay that is dangerous, if not altogether fatal.

Orators in Word Battle.

The speakers Thursday night were Judge A. M. Tillman, Judge S. F. Wilson, Maj. E. Stahlman, Charles Rowe, and Miss J. Garrett, against the suffrage amendment, and Miss Charles Williams, Ed J. Searcy, James Fowler, Senator McKellar and Charles Tillman for the amendment. Judge Tillman is a Republican of note, a former circuit judge, once a candidate for governor and a man who stands high in the councils of his party. Judge Wilson is a member of the court of appeals and a distinguished jurist. Maj. Stahlman is a newspaper publisher and a powerful factor in state politics. Miss Rowe is the head of the league of women opposed to the amendment. Representative Garrett is the brilliant congressman from the sixth district of Tennessee. Miss Williams stands at the head of the women of the state in the Democratic party, a member of the national committee and leader of the forces in charge of the fight for ratification. Mr. Searcy is a lawyer, Mr. McKellar is the junior senator from Tennessee and Gen. Cates for a number of years was attorney general of the state and is regarded as one of the brilliant legal minds of the nation. Mr. Fowler is a Republican leader in Knoxville.

Gov. Roberts Hears Talks.

In the audience were hundreds of workers for suffrage, state and national. Gov. Roberts was accompanied by his family. Every available seat on the floor and in the gallery was taken and hundreds of people stood back of the railing of the house and listened and watched the ebb and flow of opinion through the tense and exciting hours. The audience was about evenly divided; about half the men and half the women were to be on either side as shown by the tumultuous applause.

Only while Miss Rowe was speaking was there any hostile demonstration. Some of the good ladies stuck their tongues out at her, made faces and otherwise manifested their displeasure toward one who would take the time and trouble to come from New York to appeal to the legislature of Tennessee not to place the ballot in the hands of her sex on an equality with the men.

Reads Letter From Harding.

The sensation of the evening easily was a letter read by Judge Tillman from Senator Harding. Tillman read a letter he wrote Senator Harding appraising him of the provision in the Tennessee constitution which would amend the federal constitution shall be ratified by the legislature unless it shall have been submitted before the members of the legislature considering it are elected.

Senator Harding Wrote That Judge Tillman's Letter Was the First Information He Had Regarding the Tennessee Constitution and That He Was an Ardent Believer in the Cause of Woman Suffrage.

What effect the letter will have on the Republican members is a problem which will be solved by the vote Wednesday. At the 25th Republican members of the house voted to table a motion intended to kill the suffrage amendment. A majority of the Democrats voted to kill it. Will the Republicans continue to stand for the amendment in the face of the very ardent invitation to come from the Republican candidates for president that is being asked by Mr. Riddick, house leader for suffrage. Miss Williams in charge of the fight for the women and Senator Hixon, leader of the suffrage forces in the senate.

Outlook Not Pleasing.

Frankly they are not encouraged over the prospect. The outlook is not as altogether pleasing as it was before the committee declined to act and before Judge Tillman offered the Republican members the advantage of a caucus that some believe they will welcome to avoid ratification.

There has been no letup in the fight, but like any other cause it is becoming involved. Some of the members say they can not afford to stay indefinitely in Nashville for the privilege of casting a vote for suffrage. A week is almost as long as the cost of a night's lodging. Some members say openly that they are about ready to go home. Then there are those who regret the leadership of Mr. Riddick because of his great ability, his reputation as a law-giver and his fighting qualities. He is the ideal leader of the forces for ratification in the house but there are some who feel that they might have backed in the spotlight the suffragists not selected and sent him to Nashville for the avowed purpose of leading the fight. While it is manifest that the fight would have been irretrievably lost long before now had there not been a leader of the capacity of Mr. Riddick there is still a feeling in existence that mediocrity fares better in the absence of genius.

Election Board Race.

Then there is the question of the selection of an election commissioner for West Tennessee to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Capt. Brackin. Three members of the Shelby delegation, Bell, Canale and McCalman, are interested in the selection of Dover Barrett. They have found some help among the Democrats in the delegation and elsewhere. A number of members have signed a caucus call which may be made at any time for the selection of a Democratic nominee. It is understood that there are more than 400 names on the call and Barrett has a good chance of election. There may be some swapping on the suffrage amendment if reports are true in order to make certain a joint election. It can be put over that way. On the other hand, Senator Fowler and the other main Senate force, they may prevent an election by persuading the senators to decline to pass a joint resolution, setting a time for the election. If the senate joins the house, Barrett will be elected but if the joint session can be avoided the election will be postponed until after adjournment and then the voters of state counties to hold until the January session of the legislature. The three members from Shelby for Barrett are not likely to be members of the next session of the legislature.

These are the things that complicate the situation and the longer the vote on ratification is delayed the more obstacles to its success there may arise.

At present the principal discouragement and not to loss of votes. It is true that some are said to be wavering but there are those who are wavering on the other side. Enthusiasm ebbs and flows. It goes from the heights of the depths, from certainty to uncertainty and from hope to despair.

The situation is not as bad as it might appear. The prospect of another week in Nashville is the thing that causes some members to be almost willing to give up the ghost. Suffrage is not beaten. The fight has developed into an endurance test.

Soviet Rule Wanes As Distance Grows From Reds' Capital

TERLONKI, Finland, Russian frontier, Aug. 13. (By the Associated Press.)—Development of the soviet government in Russia has been such that today the vast Russian territory from the Pacific to the Baltic is divided into three distinct sections: the attitude of the people toward Bolshevism.

In a recent 4,000-mile trip across the entire country all the way from Vladivostok to the Finnish border, the Associated Press correspondent observed that soviet support diminishes with increasing distance from the capital at Moscow, where the supreme flats for iron-clad militancy are issued.

In the remote eastern section of Siberia the Bolsheviks admit failure to establish their system and are seeking to create a buffer state known as "The Far Eastern Republic." Siberia proper, from Irkutsk to the Ural where eight months ago Bolshevism was welcomed as a relief from the Kolchak regime, is ready for another change to anything which will bring economic betterment.

Proceeding farther westward the traveler finds European Russia, like a great mobilized army, in starvation circumstances, and cursing the Reds, yet executing their orders with a grim determination.

The appointment of food, as well as the relative proximity to military headquarters, apparently is not a factor in maintaining soviet support. Everywhere through Siberia one hears stories that the peasants are refusing to plant their fields or to raise stock because of the repeated requisitions. Through the central part of the eastern region, where the military opposition has been largely eliminated, efforts are being made to establish card systems for the exchange of manufactured goods in return for agricultural products and textile machinery for the rural population.

In Omsk, center of the Siberian grain districts, there is at present a shortage of bread which apparently is not due to scarcity of grain. Reports indicate it is the result of a boycott condition against the government by the peasants because they are not satisfied with the returns they receive. Efforts are being made to establish card systems for the exchange of manufactured goods in return for agricultural products and textile machinery for the rural population.

DR. CROWE SPEAKS.

At the Clivian club meeting, Friday, the Rev. William Crowe, pastor of the Idlewild Presbyterian church was speaker of the day, telling of some of his observations during his long residence here. This was probably Rev. Crowe's last talk in Memphis, as he leaves soon for St. Louis, where he has been called.

THIEF LIKES VARIETY.

The window smasher who Thursday night hurled a brick through the window of W. Levi's store, 335 Poplar avenue, liked variety in footwear. He made away with three pairs of shoes of one tan, one black and the third chocolate. Levi complained to Capt. Conny Hough at headquarters.

SAYS RAILWAYS SOON CAN SUPPORT SELVES

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The railroad of the United States soon will be in position to provide for themselves and ask no consideration from outside agencies, Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, told the senate committee on reconstruction and production here yesterday. Since the roads returned to private ownership, and with increased rates and increased wages authorized, workmen and officers have taken on a new lease of life which has already been reflected in better freight conditions, he said.

Mr. Willard made those statements while discussing the need of freight cars to handle coal and other materials greatly needed in various parts of the country. He said there was a shortage of from 30 to 50 per cent in freight cars but that within a few years the railroads expected to be able to build up their equipment and overcome this shortage.

Mr. Willard, questioned extensively regarding freight rates, did not promise support for such a reduction but offered the support of the railroad executives organization in doing everything possible to expedite movement of necessary building materials such as brick, cement, slag, crushed rock, lime and lumber.

Judge Barker set Monday as the date for trial when Inspector Bee promised to have the woman on hand.

Tuckerman is charged with shooting up his home and complaint to police said Mrs. Tuckerman would prosecute.
